

Help the Mother Bison find her baby!

A mother bison is called a cow and the baby bison is called a calf. Calves are usually born in May or June. At birth a bison can weigh up to 50 lbs. They are usually up and running around by their mother within 2 hours of their birth. A bison calf is normally weaned from their mother at about 6 months. At this time a female calf will weigh around 350lbs and the male will weigh about 425lbs. When a bison is fully grown a male will weigh around 2000lbs and the adult female will weigh about 1200lbs.
